SOUTH-CAROLINA.

By HIS EXCELLENCY

WILLIAM-HENRY LYTTELTON, Esq;

Captain-General, and Governor in Chief, in and over the said Province; And Vice-Admiral of the same.

A PROCLAMATION.

WHEREAS in the present Conjuncture of Affairs, it is extremely important to His Majesty's Service, to prevent any Supply of Provisions being carried to His Enemies, the Subjects of the French King: AND WHEREAS a very large Quantity may also be wanted for the Subsistence of His Majesty's Forces upon this Continent: I have thought fit, with the Advice of His Majesty's honourable Council, to issue this my PROCLAMATION, strictly forbidding and prohibiting all Persons whatsoever to export any Provisions, of what Kind soever, from any Part of this Province (except only Rice in Vessels bound to Europe). And I do hereby strictly charge and command all the Officers of His Majesty's Customs to take Notice of, and pay due Regard to, this my Proclamation.

Given under the Great Seal of the said Province, at the Council-Chamber in Charles-Town, the 25*th of* October, Anno Domini One Thousand Seven Hundred and Fifty-Six, and in the Thirtieth Year of His Majesty's Reign.

By His Excellency's Command,
John Murray, pro Dep. Sec.

William-Henry Lyttelton.

GOD SAVE THE KING.

COMPEIGNE, July 16.

THE news of the surrender of the castle of St. Philip's in the island of Minorca, on the 28th past, which was brought here by the duc de Fronsac, is confirmed by the arrival of count d'Egmont, with the following articles of capitulation, agreed upon between marshal Richelieu and lieutenant general Blakeney.

Articles of Capitulation proposed by Lieutenant General Blakeney, for his Britannick Majesty's Garison of the Castle of St. Philip's, in the Island of Minorca.

Article I.	Article I.
That all acts of hostility shall cease, until the articles of capitulation are agreed upon and signed.	Granted
II. That all the honours of war shall be granted the garison on their surrender, such as, to march out with their firelocks on their shoulders, drums beating, colours flying, 24 charges for each man, match lighted, four pieces of cannon, and two mortars, with 20 charges for each piece, a covered waggon for the governor, and four others for the garison, which shall not be searched on any pretence.	II. The noble and vigorous defence which the English have made, having deserved all the marks of esteem and veneration, that every military person ought to shew to such actions; and marshal Richelieu being desirous also to shew general Blakeney the regard due to the brave defence he has made, grants to the garison all the honours of war that they can enjoy, under the circumstance of their going out for an embarkation, to wit, firelocks on their shoulders, drums beating, colours flying, twenty cartouches each man, and also lighted match; he consents likewise, that lieutenant general Blakeney, and his garison, shall carry away all the effects belonging to them, and that can be put into trunks. It would be useless to them to have covered waggons; there are none in the land, therefore they are refused.
III. That all the garison, including all the subjects of Britannic majesty, as well civil as military, shall carry all their baggage and effects, with liberty of removing and disposing of them as they shall think proper.	III. Granted, except to the creditors of the effects upon the island, and lawful debts of the garison, to the Marsequier, who are to be considered as French subjects, shall be paid.
IV. That the garison, including the officers, artificers, seamen, and other subjects of Britannic majesty, with their families, who shall be willing to leave the island, shall be provided with proper transport vessels, and conducted to Gibraltar by the shortest and most direct navigation: That they shall be landed there immediately upon their arrival, at the expence of the crown of France; and that they shall be supplied with provisions, out of those that may be yet remaining in the place, at the time of its surrender, as long as they shall remain in the island, and during their voyage at sea, and that in the same proportion that they receive at present. But if a greater quantity should be wanted, that they should be furnished with it at the expence of the crown of France.	IV. Transport vessels shall be furnished from among those which are in the pay of his Most Christian majesty, and proper for the military and civil garison of fort St. Philip, and their families. These vessels shall carry them by the safest navigation to Gibraltar, with the shortest delay possible, and shall land them immediately, upon condition, that after their being landed, these ships shall be provided with sufficient passports, that they may not be molested on their return to the port of France they shall be bound for: And hostages shall be given for the safety of the transport vessels and their crews, who shall embark in the first neutral ship that shall come to fetch them, after the said vessels shall be returned into the port of France.
	The garison shall also be supplied with provisions, as well during their stay in the island as for 12 days voyage, which shall be taken from those that shall be found in the fort St. Philip, and distributed on the footing that they have been usually furnished to the English garison; and if more be wanted, it shall be furnished, paying for it as shall be agreed by commissaries on both sides.
V. That proper quarters shall be provided for the garison, with an hospital fit for the sick and wounded, whilst the transports are getting ready, which shall not exceed a month, to be reckoned from the day of signing this capitulation, and with regard to those who shall not be in a condition to be embarked; a state of them shall be drawn up, and the necessary passports shall be left, for a ship to go and return; and an hospital shall also be furnished for the sick and wounded, as shall be settled by the respective commissaries.	V. The vessels being ready for the transporting the garison, the providing quarters, as demanded, becomes unnecessary; they shall go out of the place with the least delay, in order to proceed to Gibraltar; and with regard to those who cannot be ready to embark, they shall remain in the island, and all the accommodation they shall want shall be given them for their going to Gibraltar, when they shall be in a condition to be embarked.
VI. That the governor shall not be accountable for all the trouble that shall have been destroyed and burnt during the siege.	VI. Granted for the houses destroyed or burnt during the siege; but several churches and states of the admiralty court, which have been carried into the fort, shall be restored, as well as the papers of the treasurer's house, which have been carried away by the governor; and the papers and titles relating to the lodings of the French merchant ships, which have been also retained.
VII. When the garison shall come out of the place, no body shall be permitted to debauch the soldiers, or make them desert from their regiments; and their officers shall have access to them at all times.	VII. No soldier shall be enticed to desert, and the officers shall have an entire power over them to the moment of their embarkation.
VIII. An exact discipline shall be observed on each side.	VIII. Granted.
IX. That such of the inhabitants of the island, as have joined the English for the defence of the place, shall have leave to remain, and to enjoy their goods and effects in the island without being molested.	IX. General Blakeney and marshal Richelieu, cannot grant or extend the authority of the kings their masters over their subjects any further than to oblige them to remove into their dominions, those which they should not think proper to have settled here.
X. That all prisoners of war shall be restored on each side.	X. All the prisoners that have been made during the siege shall be restored on each side, so that when the French return those they have, the Picquets, which were taken going in the day admiral Byng appeared before Mahon, shall be restored.
XI. That Mr. ‖ Cunningham the engineer, who acted as a volunteer during the siege, shall have a passport, and leave to go wherever his affairs require.	XI. Granted.
XII. Upon the foregoing conditions, his excellency the lieutenant general governor consents, after the hostages shall have been exchanged for the faithful execution of the above articles, to deliver up the place to his most Christian majesty, with all the magazines, ammunition, cannons, and mortars, except those mentioned in the second article; and to point out to the engineers all the mines and subterraneous works. Done at the castle of St. Philip the 28th of June, 1756.	XII. As soon as the foregoing articles shall have been agreed upon, the French shall be put in possession of one of the gates of fort Philip's castle, as well as of the forts Marlborough and St. Charles, upon the hostages being sent on both sides, for the faithful execution of the foregoing articles. The succade that is in the port shall be removed, and the going in and coming out shall be set open, at the disposition of the French, until the whole garison has marched out: In the mean time sides shall be employed; those on the part of his excellency general Blakeney, in making an estimate of the effects in the military magazines, and others; and those on the part of his excellency marshal Richelieu, in receiving them; and to deliver to the English such part thereof, as may have been agreed upon. Plans shall also be delivered of the galleries, mines and other subterraneous works. Done at St. Philip, the 29th of June 1756.

‖ This gallant officer was second engineer of the place when Minorca was lost, and appointed by general Blakeney to succeed him pro tempore, till a proper person for that purpose should arrive from England, for which an early application was made. However, an ill-disposed person——a crime not to chief engineer, had superceded Mr. Cunningham, who therefore begged Mr. BLAKENEY's leave to resign and serve in his regiment, as he could not with honour serve under such a person. General BLAKENEY, tho' greatly concerned, could not refuse so reasonable a request, and Mr. Cunningham immediately embarked for Nice, together with two children and his lady ready to lye in of a third. She was brought to bed at Nice; and Mr. Cunningham, during the stay thereby occasioned, hearing of the French designs against Minorca, and recollecting that the platforms of the bastions in fort St. Philip were in such a ruinous condition that that they could not find any fort of use, he inſtantly laid out all the money he got maſter of, about 1600l. in purchaſing timber fit for repairing them, hired a veſſel, put it on board, and ſailed directly with it himſelf for Port Mahon, leaving his lady and children at Piſa. His arrival with ſuch a ſupply in ſuch a critical juncture, gave general SURPRIZE inſtead of pleaſure. He told captain Cuningham, that the ſervice he had done his country out of pure zeal was ſo conſiderable, that he did not know how he could be ſufficiently rewarded for it; but earneſtly inſiſted on his ſaying, to which he generouſly conſented.

CHARLES-TOWN, October 28.

Letters from London ſay, that Capt. Elliot is appointed Governor of Georgia, in the Room of His Excellency John Reynolds, Eſq; who, we hear, has deſired to be recalled: And that he was to embark for his Government ſome Time in the laſt Month.

Tho' an univerſal Spirit for Privateering has not diſcovered itſelf in Charles-Town, we are aſſured, that, if a Subſcription was ſet on Foot, there would not be found wanting thoſe who would chearfully contribute to purchaſe and fit out a proper Veſſel here to annoy His Majeſty's Enemies.
